APPLETON-UPON-WISK, in Domesday "Apeltunc," is the extreme township and a parochial chapelry in Great Smeaton parish, in that part of Cleveland which runs out into a narrow point towards the west, 7 miles south from Yarm, 8 north from Northallerton, 10 west from Stokesley and about 3½ miles south from the Picton station on the North Yorkshire and Cleveland branch of the North Eastern railway, and about 2½ miles north-west from the Wellbury station: it is in the Cleveland division of the Riding, petty sessional division of Yarm, union and county court district of Northallerton, west division of Langbaugh liberty, rural deanery of East Richmond, archdeaconry of Richmond, and diocese of Ripon. The Wisk, a rivulet, runs close to the village. The church of St. Mary, which stands in the western part of the village, is a small but ancient edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: it was thoroughly repaired in 1875 and affords 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1620. The living is a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Great Smeaton, net yearly value (Appleton) £180, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1879 by the Rev.
 Richard Henry Killick M.A. of Queen's College, Cambridge. In the village there are Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a Mechanics' Institute, with a library of 700 volumes. The manor after the Conquest belonged to Robert de Brus, Lord of Skelton, who gave it with Hornby and other lands to St. Mary's Abbey, York. After the Dissolution, Henry VIII. granted it to Charles Brandon, afterwards Duke of Suffolk, whence it passed through many hands.

 Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Marshman Havelock-Alan bart., V.C., K.C.B. is lord of the manor. Robert Routledge esq. Mrs.
 Lincoln and Francis Scott esq. are chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,627 acres; rateable value, £2,126; the population in 1891 was 294.

ARKENGARHTHDALE is a township and parish, in the dale of the same name, on the Richmond, Reeth and Brough road, 9 miles north-west from Redmire railway station on the Northallerton and Hawes branch of the North Eastern railway, about 10 south from Barnard Castle, 14 west from Richmond, and 4 north-west from Reeth, in the Richmond division of the Riding, West Gilling wapentake and petty sessional division, Reeth union, county court district of Richmond, rural deanery of West Richmond, archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Ripon. The Arkle Beck flows through the parish, which extends 7 or 8 miles in length. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1818, in the centre of the dale, about a quarter of a mile from Longthwaite, which is the largest village in the dale, is a plain building of stone, consisting of a rectangular nave with a quasi chancel, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells and a clock with two dials; there are monuments to George Brown esq. and to the Rev. John Gilpin, and Jemima, his wife. There are 344 sittings. The register dates from the year 1729, and has a few entries from an earlier book no longer in existence: the oldest of these entries is dated 1659.
 The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £153, including 29 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Right Hon. James Lowther P.C., M.P. and held since 1891 by the Rev. Joseph Baker, of St. Bees. The Wesleyan chapel at Longthwaite was erected in 1882, at a cost of £1,631: the old chapel is now used as a Sunday school. Here also is a Literary Institute. Lead was formerly obtained here in large quantities, but the amount yielded is now (1895) comparatively small.

 There are smelting and saw mills in connection with the mines; coal and slate are also found. George Thomas Gilpin-Brown esq. of Sear House, who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Peacock are the principal landowners.
 The soil is loamy, chiefly moorland and grass. The area is 14,256 acres; rateable value, £4,041 11s.; the population in 1891 was 761.

ARKLETOWN is a small village about 3½ miles northwest from Reeth, in Arkengarthdale.

BOOZE is 3 miles north-west from Reeth.

LONGTHWAITE, near the centre of Arkengarthdale, is a village 4 miles west-by-south from Reeth, and about a quarter of a mile from the church: it is the largest village in the dale.

WHAW is 5½ miles north-west from Reeth, on the river Arkle.

High Green, Seal Houses and Eskcleth are also hamlets in the parish.
